SPOKE AT BIG CONGRESS

Is Greeted by Big Crowds and Witnesses the Labor Day Parade.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 5.—President Taft, who came to St. Paul today to speak before the conservation congress, is likely to remember this as one of the busiest days he ever experienced. From the hour of his arrival in the city, at half-past eight this morning, until he retired to rest tonight scarcely a moment is unoccupied for him in the programme mapped out for him to follow. State and city officials welcomed him at the station and a squadron of cavalry from Fort Snelling escorted him to the St. Paul Hotel where he took breakfast in his private suite with Governor Elbert D. Johnson, James J. Hill, Senator Clapp and one or two other notable guests. Immediately after finishing breakfast the President reviewed the Labor day parade and at 10 o'clock sharp he appeared in the Auditorium and began his address before the hundreds of delegates comprising the National Conservation Congress. A noon luncheon at the hotel was followed by private conferences with prominent Minnesota Republicans. Shortly after 2 o'clock this afternoon he again left the hotel and under cavalry escort proceeded to Hamilton to deliver an address at the opening of the Minnesota State Fair. President Taft was greeted by a big crowd this morning and under an escort of military and civic organizations passed through the cheering crowds to a stand at the postoffice where he reviewed the Labor Day parade. In his speech at the Auditorium the President advised the farm-

NEW HAMPSHIRE TO TRY PRIMARY PLANIs the First of the Eastern States to Experiment With Scheme of Direct Nominations.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Concord, N. H., Sept. 5.—The new direct primary law passed by the last legislature will be tried for the first time in New Hampshire tomorrow. Unusual interest has been aroused by the contest because New Hampshire is the first eastern state to extend the primary plan to include the nomination of gubernatorial candidates.

There are two candidates for the republican nomination for governor—Robert P. Chase of Peterborough and Col. Burton E. Ellis of Keene. The former is the choice of the progressives and has been endorsed by many political leaders, including former United States Senator William E. Chandler, Winston Churchill and others. Col. Ellis is regarded as the candidate of the old line republicans with machine affiliations. Mrs. Martha M. Richer of Dover sought to go upon the official ballot as a candidate for governor, but the attorney general ruled that she was not eligible.

Clarence E. Carr of Andover is the only candidate for the democratic nomination for governor. He was the democratic candidate two years ago, and succeeded in reducing the republican majority to the lowest figure on record. Because of the split in the republican ranks the democrats feel much encouraged and some even venture the prediction that they will elect the next governor.

The warrant was sworn out on a complaint of Postmaster Anderson. Kohlfisch will have to remain in the county jail in the meantime.

How To Vote at the Primary

As there seems to be a misunderstanding about how to vote the ticket at the primaries Tuesday, perhaps a little information as to how the ballots are made and how to vote them will be of service to the voters.

When you enter the voting place you will be handed the primary ballot. It will be several tickets fastened together at the top. There will be a ticket for each party. You will take all these tickets into the voting booth and tear out the ticket you want to vote.

Remember, you can vote only one of these tickets. For example, suppose you want to vote the republican ticket and there is a man on the democratic ticket you would like to vote for. If you should write the democrat's name on the republican ticket it would not help the democrat any as the vote would be counted as a republican vote. Remember you must vote only ONE TICKET.

Now about marking the ballot. You cannot mark this ticket at the top as you can the Australian ballot at the general election. On the primary ballot you must make a cross like this X behind every man's name that you want to vote for and for only one for each office. For example, just suppose you wish to vote for Fairchild. Put an X after his name where it appears under the words "For Governor," and after no other name. So with the other offices. You cannot vote for two men for the same office.

Be sure and read your ballot. Take your time. Don't hurry. Be sure you vote for the man you want and not for some candidate simply because his name is the first name on the list. Be careful about this, and also remember that in Wisconsin it is more important to get out and vote at the primaries than at the general election in November.

After you have torn out your ticket and marked it fold it up by itself and also fold the blank ballots by themselves, then pass out to the inspectors. They place the ballot you have marked in one place and the blanks in another. All this is easy to do if the voter will give it a little attention. To be sure of putting the men in office that we want we must be very careful about marking our ballots.

Now don't think because you don't fully understand this primary voting that you are behind the times. If you do not fully understand it don't be backward about asking someone about it.

If you will take your time and read all the names on the ticket and place a cross like this X in the little square like this [X] behind every man's name you wish to vote for you will not make any mistake in marking your ballot.

HEARNE EASY WINNER
IN SPEEDWAY FEATUREChicago Man Drives to Victory in 100-Mile Auto Race at Indianapolis.

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 5.—Maintaining an average speed of 75 miles per hour, Eddie Hearne, the Chicago driver, in his big Benz, captured the 100-mile free-for-all, the feature event at the speedway. The youthful pilot and winner of the Fox River trophy in the recent Elgin races covered the distance in 1:19:58.

The second 100-mile race, also a big feature, was won by Wilcox, driving a National. His time was 1:23:3. Hearne captured additional honors when he won the ten-mile free-for-all, thereby retaining possession of the Speedway Holman; Livingston (National) finished second and DePalma (Flat) third. The winner's time was 7:03.

Hearne drove the 120 Benz, which has been made famous by Barney Oldfield and David Bruce Brown, and in this powerful car he displayed astonishing speed. The ten-mile race for all was won by him at an average pace of 85.5 miles per hour, while in the long distance event he maintained a pace of 75 miles an hour for the century.

Westcott, a dark horse, was second in the 100-mile event, Livingston in a National third, and Harroun, Marmon, fourth. Hearne made only one stop and that for oil.

The 100-mile race for the Romy trophy was won by Wilcox in a National, who went the century without a stop in 1:23:00.3, an average of 72.2 miles per hour. Merz, also in a National, was second, and Clonius, Speedwell, third.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON.

I WONDER if most men realize that the girl they see and the girl that girl's feminine friends see is almost always an entirely different person.

I often think of that when I see a group of girls transformed by the coming of a man among them.

It couldn't be a man they care about particularly or even a young man—just a man.

Of course I realize that this isn't any more a conscious and premeditated change than the sunflowers turning toward the sun is conscious or premeditated.

But it's just as inevitable.

Some of the girls change for the better and some for the worse.

I know one girl who masculine society changes something as the sun's coming out of the clouds changes the aspect of the ocean. That is, it brightens her up, makes her more delightful, makes her sparkle.

I know another who is a nice, charming girl among girls but who becomes so painfully affected the moment a man appears in sight that you would scarcely know her for the same person.

And I know a third—one of the very nicest of all the women I know, by the way—who fancies men do not like her and who consequently makes it unlikely that they will, by being stiff and prickly and absolutely different from her nice, jolly, friendly, normal self, whenever a man appears.

Often times I wish with all my heart that some man could see the girl he is inclined to be interested in, as she is with other girls—sometimes as a warning, sometimes as an incentive.

If it were possible for lovers to borrow the invisible mantle of the old fairy tales and go into their beloved's homes and see them as they are with their families and as they are with their girl friends, there would be more happy marriages.

Of course this is a confession, and of course many of my sex will deny it indignantly—at least in so far as they personally are concerned.

But don't believe them—you masculine readers—because it's almost invariably true.

And it's not meant as an accusation against or an aspersion upon my sex either—merely as a statement of a fact, a voicing of a line of nature which I think some men, and even some women might not realize.

By the way, can it be there is a companion law?

Are you men also entirely different creatures among yourselves?

I wonder.

them. It was defined, printed, written, spelled and defined, written, and spelled again.

The next week the study was "read."

One word at a time those children learned, or rather had the subject slowly incorporated into their being.

Perhaps they will never forget words learned this way, but it seemed a poor system.

They might better forget a few words and learn more. The child who was used to going ahead and getting somewhere with her studies became listless. She was not interested. She knew those words anyway before she went to school, and once, or twice at most, was sufficient for her. She was an average child, and yet all those children were held to this humdrum study so that the stupid ones might also have learned the words from which there was no escape.

We are a long suffering people. We will admit that our children waste time, and yet we will not take the matter in hand and right this great wrong to them.

I do not believe in hurrying children. It is wrong to over-teach them, but it is also wrong to hold them in unsanitary rooms, under a dull routine of pretenses of learning, when they should be out in the sun and air, making healthy bodies.

If we are waiting all but seventeen hours in those first four years, why not turn them into formative periods?

Why not build up a foundation of health and strength during those years, which will prepare the children for quicker and better work further up the line?

The average child should be under the care of the schools from the time it is five years of age. The school system should be simply a method of getting at the child who would not be kept in sanitary homes and under proper conditions. Those four years from five to nine should be devoted to health. If we built up strong bodies during those years and then kept the schools in proper condition, and looked after the health of the child as it passes from grade to grade, we would soon be able to dispense with many of the public asylums for helpless and broken-down citizens.

It is well to provide for the old and poor, but it is also well to remember that the "source of prevention" as in this case it means health.

blame the teachers. He finds no fault with them as to education or interest. He does not find the child delinquent. It is the system that is objectionable!

Why do we free-born and thinking people submit to such a system? Do all want what is best for the child, but to condemn a child to such drudgery as this is to be utterly cruel and unkind to his best interests.

It makes him dull. No child will be alert and anxious to learn under such conditions. No man would submit to learning anything which took him thirty-two hundred hours to learn if he thought that seventeen hours was sufficient.

We have a saying that adults will grasp a subject more easily and with a broader intellect than a child.

The child's brain is just as quick. It has a wonderful grasp within certain scopes. We are the ones who make it dull and feeble.

One rather bright child was sent to the public school for the first time, after she had learned enough under her mother's tuition to pass the kindergarten period. She went into the first grade and when questioned as to what had been taught her during the first week, she said the subject was "seed."

Day after day these children were drilled on seed. It was shown to them in all its aspects. It was drawn for

THEATRE

If your cousin or aunt or friend happened to visit New York during the long engagement of "The Blue Mouse" at the Lyric Theatre, where it stayed for one year, it is needless to say very much here commendatory of Clyde Fitch's last farce, the New York papers called it "a success," old friends and first-nighters declared it "a scream without a flaw."

Mr. Fitch adapted the farce from the German Alexander Engel and Julius Horst, who, by the way, were authors of "Girls." Few plays created the wide-spread attention that did "The Blue Mouse" when it was brought out in New York. It has proven a most valuable property for the Messrs. Shubert who are offering the play at the Lyric Theatre next Monday Sept. 5, and Tuesday evening with a cast which includes Grace Stewart, Wilton Taylor, India Palmer, Guy D'Emery, Geraldine Brooks, John Hayes, Gordon McDonough, W. G. Royner, Carlo Wright, John Dunge, W. H. Burke, Mary MacGregor, Doris Kraker, Manuel Alexander and others.

As for the plot "The Blue Mouse" is said to have been abundantly supplied. Mr. Fitch not only conceived original and unique types but many novel scenes.

In speaking of the character of Pauletto Divine, the vaudeville Salome dancer who is known to her intimates as "The Blue Mouse," "he is neither good nor bad," writes Ashton Stevens in the New York Evening Journal, "she is beautifully tough."

Augustus Rollette, secretary to President Jewell of the Interstate Railroad, wants to be promoted to the position of division superintendent. He is married and very much in love with his wife, who with her father is shocked. He conceives a brilliant idea, therefore, of taking advantage of a peculiar weakness of his employer. This weakness taken the form of innocent flirtations with pretty young women. Rollette knows of "The Blue Mouse" by reputation and makes her a proposition to pose as Mrs. Rollette and under this guise flirt with Jewell. The net result, for a consideration of $200 per month, becomes the commission. The first meeting between the bogus Mrs. Rollette and the president is ludicrous in the extreme, but during the interview, which unfortunately for Jewell takes place in his private office, the fat and ancient Mrs. Jewell surprises the flirtations pair. Jewell very graciously introduces the lady as Mrs. Rollette, whereupon his wife declares she has had the opportunity of meeting the secretary's better half only a few hours before.

The curtain has hardly been up fifteen minutes before the complications pile one upon the other so fast that the audience barely has time to follow the development of the farce.

Of course, the president has never met the real Mrs. Rollette and when this lady herself calls at his office to inquire for her husband, he mistakes her for the famous "Blue Mouse" and as he explains, "never having had an experience with a stage lady," tries to check her under the chin.

To further his affair with Mrs. Rollette, he dispatches his secretary to Rochester, mentioning making an appointment with his newly made friend to take her to the opera and afterwards to Reeder's for supper. Under the belief that he is calling at the home of his secretary, he drops in at the exquisitely furnished apartments of Miss Divine. Rollette, in stead of taking the first train, calls on the dancer to warn her that she must "make good" or he will discontinue further payment. The two men meet. It is easy enough for Rollette to explain his presence but not so easy for the virtuous posing railroad executive to explain why he is there. This he does, however, by quickly writing an order for the promotion of Rollette and with this paper in her possession "The Mouse" saves the day.

The play is handsomely staged. There are three acts, the first showing the two offices, the railroad president, the second his "flirt apartments" of "The Blue Mouse" and the third the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rollette.

SHIP BURNS; CREW SAVED BY PASSING STEAMERS

Thirty-Two Men Have Fierce Battle Against Death for Five Days.

Boston, Sept. 5.—All of the 32 officers and men of the British freight steamer West Point that burned to the water's edge and then sank after having braved a terrific sea in a drenching storm and fought heroically against starvation for five days in open boats, have been saved.

Wireless messages brought the news that Captain Pinkham and 15 of his crew had been picked up by the Mauretania at midnight on Friday. The mate's boat, with 16 of the crew, was found by the Loyalliner Devonian on Friday morning, and the men are expected to reach this port on board that vessel Tuesday morning.

The Mauretania is outward bound from New York and will land Captain Pinkham and the men who were with him at Liverpool. The message from the Mauretania was relayed across nearly two-thirds of the Atlantic.

Hudson, N. Y., Sept. 5.—Masked men sprang out of the bushes alongside a lonely lane, held up Dent Fowler, paymaster of the Atlas Brick company, and his negro driver, shot the driver dead, wounded Fowler mortally and made off with a chest of pay envelopes containing $5,000.

Fowler was wounded over the heart and died without regaining full consciousness. He was twenty-one years old, a son of Everett Fowler of Haverstraw, N. Y. The robbers escaped.

The satchel containing the $5,000 was later discovered hidden under some leaves within a short distance of where the men were murdered. The money was intact and the valises had not been opened.

Toledo, O., Sept. 5.—Twenty-six persons were injured, nine seriously, when an east-bound limited and a west-bound local collided head-on on the Lake Shore electric road near Allen's Corners, two miles east of Norwalk.

The cars came together at full speed on a curve. J. N. Bebo of Norwalk, motorman on the limited, takes upon himself all blame.

"It's my fault," he said. "I should have waited for the local at Allen's, but I forgot all about the order."

AS PEACE MAKER.

The announcement recently published to the effect that the German Emperor will in all probability be the next recipient of the Nobel peace prize has given rise to considerable comment and much discussion in Germany. The history of the Nobel prize was given in "The Christian Science Monitor" some little time ago, and as was then pointed out, this prize is given to that person who is considered to have done most in the cause of peace. The last recipient of the Nobel prize was ex-President Roosevelt. There is no keener soldier than Emperor William, yet he has maintained peace during the twenty-two years of his reign, in spite of the fact that he is at the head of a great and thoroughly trained army. This fact alone, it is considered by some, would entitle his majesty to the peace prize; others, on the other hand, are afraid lest, in accepting the award, his majesty would be set down as desirous of having "peace at any price," and this they declare would not be in keeping with the spirit of a German soldier.

It is said that "prevention is better than cure," and, since the days of fighting more or less for fighting's sake have long since passed, it may surely be said that the best statesman or soldier is not he who fights most battles, but he who does most to prevent the necessity of doing so. The most usual reader of the news of the day during the past few years will not have failed to learn that these sentiments have been frequently expressed by his majesty, for on more than one occasion he has declared publicly that it is his highest ambition to do all in his power to maintain the peace of Europe, and it may certainly be said, therefore, that in declaring Emperor William to be the next most worthy recipient of the prize, the highest possible compliment would be paid to his majesty as well as indirectly to these statesmen working under him, and to the country whose welfare they have done so much to promote.

DUNWIDDIE'S CAMPAIGN.

Stanley Dunwiddie, one of the candidates for the nomination for the office of district attorney, has conducted a clean, honest campaign throughout. He has acted the part of a gentleman, has ignored the insinuations, the slurs and mud-slinging of his opponent, showing the qualifications which go to make up a gentleman and a man.

Mr. Dunwiddie was endorsed by members of the bar and by members of the county board. This latter endorsement is by far the most important in view of the fact that the board has much to do with the office of the district attorney and their approval of a candidate means the hearty co-operation of those two most important branches of county government. The district attorney acts as the legal advisor of the county board and they follow his advice. After years of acquaintance with the opponent to Mr. Dunwiddie the board almost unanimously rejects his candidacy, evidently not having confidence in his opinion. It means that many legal entanglements will result should Dunwiddie be defeated for nomination as it is certain that extra counsel would have to be employed by the board to handle their legal business. This is an item to consider carefully. Mr. Dunwiddie is well fitted for the office, a graduate of one of the best law schools in the country and trained in the offices of his father, the late Judge of the circuit court. He is a young man of sterling worth and his character is above reproach. The voters will make no mistake by endorsing him with their vote.

CAMPAIGN CLOSES.

Tomorrow is primary day. It is the official end of the summer campaign that has been most bitterly fought by the candidates for the various offices, both state, congressional, legislative and county. The Gazette has endeavored to give the voters the true spirit of republicanism. The voters tomorrow have the opportunity of exercising their franchise to vote and they will act as the last tribunal. As a guide to the voters who are undecided, as yet the following state ticket is printed for their consideration:

For United States Senator, S. A. COOK.
For Governor, EDWARD T. FAIRCHILD.
For Lieutenant Governor, GEORGE B. HYNDMAN.
For Secretary of State, CHRISTIAN J. MELLAAS.
For Treasurer, JULIUS HOWLAND.
For Commissioner of Insurance, M. J. CLEARY.
For Congressman, WALLACE INGALLS.
For Assemblyman, CHAS. A. GAULT.
For Assemblyman, 1st Dist.—LAURENCE WHITTET.
2nd Dist.—GRANT U. FISHER.
3rd Dist.—CHAS. A. GAULT.

Today is Labor Day. Janesville makes no official celebration of the event beyond shutting down the places of business and giving the working man an opportunity to enjoy his own holiday.

Ensign Ransom is just the man for the important office of sheriff of Rock county. He has a good, clean record as a citizen and business man and the voters will have to go far to find a more suitable man for the office.

School begins tomorrow and the small boy will look back with regret and sorrow to the summer vacation days just passed.

The polls open tomorrow at six and close at seven. Vote early to avoid the rush.

Work on the streets continues to drag. Perhaps this injunction will help matters along.

Evansville certainly had a county fair with plenty of political slinger in it.

THE POET PHILOSOPHERBy WALT MASON.
(Copyright, 1909, by George Mathew Adams.)

"The bums stood up, a dismal row, before the solemn judge, and when they told their tale of woe, he simply answered, 'Poor fellows, the world's abuse, dried in misfortune's rain!'" each muttered his excuse, the jurist murmured "Rats!" Perhaps the narratives were true told by those wails and strays; it matters not, for each one drew ten dollars or ten days. I watched them shuffle from the court as they had shambled in; the youthful he and aged sport, the bent who smiled of gin, "Poor fellow on the human stream!" I moralized aloud: "Each babe had his youthful dream—each bum in all that crowd! Life's morning, seemed serene to him, and full of promise fair; and then the light of hope grew dim, and storm clouds filled the air. And whose fault? If he has strayed from sunny paths of peace, to wander in the darkness shade, pursued by fat devils? Was there a voice, when first his feet from virtue wandered wide, to cheer, encourage or entreat, to counsel or to guide? We put the broken bums in lock—twere better had we tried to show them paths wherein to walk before they wandered wide. I pity them in all their woe, these homeless, friendless jays! The jurist, dozing, murmured low: "Ten dollars or ten days!"

THE DEAD HAND.

A foolish old man died the other day leaving a quarter of a million dollars to his adopted son, a child of eight years.

That he was foolish no less than mean is proved by the conditions laid down in the will. The boy must—Graduate from Harvard at eighteen. Study six months at Oxford. Graduate from West Point. Spend his vacations in Europe. Shall not be a Roman Catholic.

He must learn manual training, dancing and music. He must resign from the army and practice law. He must not associate with his step-mother, from whom the old man got a divorce, or her daughter.

And, besides—The executors must be careful to teach him "to know the artful and parasitic nature of most of the unfortunate sex."

Poor little chap! Should he comply with the terms of the will and get the money it will doubtless be the worst thing that could happen to him. Boys are easily ruined by getting money they have never earned.

What would you do if you were in this boy's place? You would take the money? You could probably comply with the educational requirements if you studied hard. But suppose you had been reared in a certain church and believed with all your soul in that church. Would you give it up for a quarter of a million dollars? Not if you were the right sort.

Or—Suppose you wanted to be a doctor or an artist or a merchant. Would you give up your natural wish for the money? You might do that.

But suppose your stepmother and her daughter had been good to you. Would you snub them and refuse to recognize them or associate with them? Would you want to be taught that womanhood is artful and parasitic?

You see, some time you might fall in love with a good girl and you would not want to believe that she was false and deceptive.

The poor boy is young—too young to choose his way—and it may be that the petty prejudices and hatreds of the dead man will become his, more's the pity.

Poor chap! Compelled to repress all his natural longings and aspirations, he can never be happy. And all his life long he will be a mere puppet, the strings of whose life will be pulled by a dead hand stretched from the grave.

ROCKEFELLER'S WIFE WORSE.

Oil King's Absence From His Pew In Church Gives Rise to Rumor.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 5.—John D. Rockefeller, for the first time this summer, failed to attend the morning service at the Euclid Avenue Baptist church, giving rise to belief that Mrs. Rockefeller's illness is more serious than has been admitted at Forest Hill. Inquiry at Forest Hill disclosed nothing beyond the information that Mr. Rockefeller had declined to remain at home with the family and that Mrs. Rockefeller's condition was unchanged.

Wife of Heir to Large Estate Meets Mysterious Death on Tracks.

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 5.—The mangled body of Mrs. Betsy Uspon Plant, wife of Albert E. Plant, one of the heirs of the great Plant estate in Branford, was found on the railroad tracks near her home, and it was not until several hours later that her family learned that she had been killed. Nothing is known as to how she came to her death.

"All Wool and a Yard Wide"

"Doctor Richards, your former work for me has proven entirely satisfactory in the years I have had it in my mouth, so I come back to you for this new tooth which has broken down and needs attention."

This is what people say to me almost daily.

The proof is in the years of use which my patients get out of my work. I know my competitors say that good work can't be done for less than their schedule of prices (which is double mine).

But nevertheless people come in (as stated above) and show me my work doing good service yet.

I've been practicing in Janesville now in my tenth year.

Let me save you one-half on your dental bill.

I'm called the Painless Dentist by my grateful patients.

BRIDGE PROBLEM IS IMPORTANT

TO BE VOTED ON AT TOMORROW'S PRIMARY.

UP TO VOTERS' DECISION

Reason Why Milwaukee Street Structure is Not Included in the List of Improvements.

So many voters have asked why the Milwaukee street structure was not included in the proposal to build two new bridges across the Rock river that the following explanation is made to clarify the situation. It is not necessary for the voters to hand the city for the Milwaukee street structure for the following reason. On March 31 1882 the legislature passed an amendment to the Janesville City charter as follows:

Section 4 Chapter 4 of the Special Charter of the City of Janesville authorizes and empowers the Common Council to construct, free bridges across Rock river and Spring Brook within the city limits at such points as the Council may designate, and to repair and rebuild the same, but prohibits the Council from constructing any bridge across Rock River where no bridge existed across the river, at the date of the passage of Chapter 4, without first submitting the question to the electors of the city, whether or not a special tax shall be levied for such purpose.

Several years prior to the passage of said act, Milwaukee street bridge was built, thus giving the Council the unquestioned authority to build or repair this bridge, or any other bridge that was built across Rock River prior to March 31, 1882, without submitting the question to the electors of the city.

The Fourth Ave. bridge was built by individuals between 1882 and 1887. The legislature by Section 9, chapter 164, laws of 1887, authorized the city to purchase and maintain this bridge by special act. The Racine street structure is an entirely new one and consequently with the Fourth avenue bridge must be bonded. The Milwaukee street bridge can be repaired or rebuilt by order of the council but for the other bridges the city must be bonded. The bonds call for $50,000 in bonds at five per cent to run twenty years which would mean but 45 cents per thousand dollars assessed value of the city property for twenty years during which the bonds would run.

Both questions must be voted upon together so that if the voters want one bridge they must take the other. Now that the question of the Milwaukee street structure is cleared away it is trusted that the voters will decide to vote for the bridges.

GATES UNHINGED AT THE COUNTRY CLUB
Public Invited to Big Autumn Frolic Which Opened This Noon and Continues Till Midnight.

Politicians and the fervent handshakes have the day at the Country Club, where, commencing at noon and up to midnight all gates will be unhinged and the public welcomed to the Autumn Frolic of 1910. Early this morning an army of boss campaignmen, under the direction of the House committee, composed of Miss Louise Merrill, the Madams E. H. Peterson and H. H. Bliss, and the Messrs. A. P. Burdham and Howard Black, began to take the tents and booths on the plot of ground just east of the putting clock, and before mid-forenoon the ensemble began to look like the "real goods" in carnival parlance, and the amateur showmen and spellers, rehearsing their stunts, had ushered in a carnival spirit that was irresistible and unquenchable.

Miss Josephine Trent and Miss Catherine Picard of Chicago and their company will be seen in high class vaudeville and moving pictures. William W. Watt of Nevada will put on the Johnson-Jeffries fight pictures and a living reproduction of the historic battle. The Messrs. Haggart and Miss Amy Benton have a fish pond and candy booth. "You're another guess coming—the Goose is a Who Bird!" will be the motif of an exhibition under the management of Chester Morse. Malcolm Jeffries and Henry Carpenter are to exhibit a tent full of Rhode Island Spawblers. Miss Charlotte Mount will make her debut as a gypsy fortune-teller. The Tea Shop concession has been given to Miss Gladys Hedges. H. E. McCoy, who claims to know more than most about entomology in the shock will dish up huge melons with ice-cream cores. The customary "tigger baby racks" and lemonade stands will be in evidence and the monoplane, "Bussard-150" is scheduled to make thrilling aerial flights from the windmill station both afternoon and evening.

Melons will be received from twelve and ten and from six until five and automobiles will run from Baker's drug store. Mrs. H. G. Carter will be in charge of the putting tournament for ladies and the club house will be given up to bridge in the afternoon and dancing in the evening.

COLLEGE MUSICAL PLAY IS PLEASING

Fair Sized Audiences Greeted William Norris and Company in "My Cinderella Girl."

William Norris, who was last seen here with Oils Skinner as the court jester in "Francesca da Rimini" about eight years ago, and an excellent company pleased fair sized audiences at the Myers theatre Saturday afternoon and evening in "My Cinderella Girl," a musical play woven about a series of improbable but highly amusing college episodes. Mr. Norris makes the most of his opportunities in the role of "Tom Harrington," captain of the "Stuash" baseball team and all around college cut-up, and Frank Vanderpool who plays the part of the wealthy catcher "Rube," Ethel Bell, Maude Campbell, Mabel Mordant, Myra Brooks as the landlady of the College Inn, B. P. Theodore as "Shuts" the pitcher, and all the other principals are well cast in their respective roles. The chorus of college girls is in evidence much of the time and there are some excellent typical songs and ballads.

WILL CITY DADS BEAR EXPENSE?

JOHN J. KELLY DEMANDS RESTITUTION FOR CENTER AVE. WORK.

INJUNCTION AGAINST THEM

Was Issued by Court Commissioner Richardson and Notice Served Upon the Officials Saturday Night.

Mayor Wilbur F. Carle, every member of the common council, City Treasurer, Father, City Clerk Cummings, and Street Commissioner Proctor received summons Saturday evening to appear within 20 days and defend themselves in an action started by C. M. & H. P. Yarmadorf John J. Kelly, who resides on Chatham street in the Fifth ward, to compel the return of all money paid for labor and material in the work of improving Center avenue ($800 thus far) and to prevent the payment from the ward or general funds of additional obligations amounting to about $1,500 according to his figures. Court Commissioner Marshall P. Richardson also enjoins the defendants from continuing the work.

The complaint declares that the changing of the grade of that thoroughfare, the laying of cement curb and gutter, the use of crushed stone from a crusher plant, the placing of a curb at a loss by the city, the manufacturing of the street under the guise of repairs, the issuing and signing of orders for material for such purposes, and every other act connected with said improvement was contrary to law. It also states that obligations incurred by this work and expenses actually paid thus far will more than exhaust the ward fund raised by taxation in 1909 so that the complainant and others may have none of the repairs needed on other thoroughfares, providing it is allowed to stand.

Mr. Kelly's attorneys are John Cunningham and Charles Pierce.
Mayor Carle on Wednesday last, after a vain effort at persuasion, went over the street with the city engineer and street commissioner and issued an order that all work excepting the placing of rubble to save the curb and gutter from being undermined should cease.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS OF THE CITY TO START TOMORROW

Teachers and Scholars Make Preparations for the Opening of the Fall Term.

Vacation days for the students of the public schools and today and tomorrow morning the fall term will be opened in both graded and high schools. Nearly all of the teaching staff has returned to the city or will be here by this evening, and this afternoon at four o'clock a conference of teachers was held at the high school building. There are but few changes in the teaching force of the public schools for the coming year, having been reorganized. At the high school Miss Lucile Cuyler, a graduate of Oberlin college, will assist with the domestic science work and have charge of the physical training for girls, and Miss Helen Vlyman, sister of Prof. William Vlyman, will teach mathematics in the place of Miss Miller. Miss Leonora Hall will be instructor of a combined first and second grades at the Adams school and Miss Carrie Nelson of a combined third and fourth grades at the Jefferson school. On account of the illness of her mother, Miss Mae Henderson will be unable to take up her duties in the first grade at the Adams school and Miss Jennie Patterson will substitute for her for a short time. Mrs. L. F. Baird will take charge of the second grade at the Adams school temporarily for Miss Margaret Youngblum, who will begin her duties later. The kindergarten work at the Jefferson school will be started by Miss Jacobs, but she will relinquish it later when some one is appointed to the place.

It is expected that the attendance this year, in the grade schools and in high schools, from the city and from the country, will be large. Records this year will probably be about the same as in former years.

BRIEF LOCAL NEWS.

Hunting at Koshkonong: Jesse Carle who has been hunting ducks at Lake Koshkonong, says that his party, which included J. D. Brownell, Harry Nowlan, and Louis Slavem, bagged 17 the first day of the season, not counting mud hens. That record has not since been equaled. The aquatic fowl are not flying yet and only those that nested at Lake Koshkonong are available thus far.

76,800 Bumps a Day: Some ingenious mathematician has been conjuring with the nerve-wracking possibilities of the flat-wheel on street car No. 10. Allowing the wheel a circumference of 60 inches and estimating at 300 feet there are 60 bumps to the block. If the car travels 20 blocks each way and makes 32 round trips per day it will jar the ear-drums of pedestrians along the route just 76,800 times during a day's run. The estimate is very conservative, though, as 56 feet to the block ought to be allowed.

QUAKER CITY IS STILL SLOW.

Remains Third Largest City in Union—Increase Only 19.4 Per Cent.

Washington, Sept. 5.—The census figures on the population of Philadelphia show that the city has grown only 255,311 in the last ten years. It remains the third city in the United States.

In proportion of growth the Quaker city has fallen below any important municipality, the census of which has been announced, save St. Louis. The latter place grew 19.4 per cent. in the last ten years. Philadelphia barely topped that advance with an increase of 19.7 per cent.

To Voters of Rock County

I desire to announce my candidacy for the nomination for District Attorney at the Republican Primaries to be held September 6th, 1910.

Stanley G. Dunwiddie

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, Monday, Sept. 5, 1870.—Jettings.—Trinity church is undergoing some improvements.

Rock river is unusually high for this season of the year.

The harvesting of the tobacco crop is now in progress in this locality. Lake Koshong is swarming with ducks which will be pleasing intelligence to our sportsmen.

Outside appearances indicate that not much work is being done toward the completion of the court house. In the middle men are at work on the walls and floors.

The Mutuals and Fountain City are playing a game of baseball at the driving park this afternoon. At the end of the fourth inning the game stood 19 for the Mutuals and 2 for the Fountain City.

At the First M. E. church last evening there was a most interesting Sunday School concert. The house was full. Every one present seemed enthusiastic with the exercises and the children and teachers who trained them deserve great praise. The singing by Mr. Allington as well as his talk to the little ones was very appropriate and well received. Prof. Stowers, the pastor, was in good humor and gave a happy address. Master Orent is quite a marvel at the organ. The Dana Girls sang charmingly. The "Te Deum" was excellent. The Misses Carlo delighted the audience and everything gave satisfaction. Business is looking up in Justice Pritchard's court for the establishment for the adjustment of personal differences. On Friday the case of Russell against McKee came on for trial. The complaint was that McKee's dogs had killed Russell's pigs. Sixty-three dollars damages were awarded the plaintiff. On Saturday Mrs. Tobin was fined one dollar for setting a dog on some children, and Thomas Tobin, her son, was fined a similar amount for assisting in the performance and striking one of them.

SPRING VALLEY CORNERS.

Spring Valley, Sept. 3.—Mrs. L. N. Bowles visited with relatives here recently.

Miss Irene Morrill returned Monday to Chicago.

Miss Elsie Hagemann is spending a few days with friends in Broadhead. Mrs. Sule Ma is suffering with an attack of quinsy.

Andrew Thompson is putting up a new steel windmill on Mack Harper's farm here in place of the old wooden tower.

Mr. North of Evansville spent Sunday with relatives.

Albert Palmer was a Janesville visitor one day last week.

Geo. McCallin was in Evansville on Tuesday.

Mrs. Flora Owen of Madison is the guest of relatives.

A number from here are visitors in Evansville this week to attend the fair.

BROADHEAD.

Broadhead, Sept. 3.—Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Vollhardt are visiting their son, Will, and family at Plattville.

The Sub-Rosa club entertained Thursday evening for Mrs. W. L. Stephenson of Ladysmith and friend, Mrs. Johnson of Milwaukee at the home of Mrs. A. R. Baxter on Thursday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. George Ross have moved into the Farmer residence recently purchased by John Busch.

Mrs. Matt Stephenson and son, Leo, returned home on Friday to Lady Smith after a week's visit here.

J. M. Whitcomb of Albany was a Broadhead business visitor on Friday. Messrs. W. O. Green and Calvin Martin returned Friday from Plattville where they were attending the big Badger fair. Mr. and Mrs. Bert Stephens have also been there.

Our schools open for the fall term next Tuesday and a large attendance is expected.

Miss Lena V. Newman, editor of the Wisconsin Citizen, who was badly burned in a gasoline explosion some weeks ago has been able to return to her own home and is getting along nicely.

The harvesting of tobacco has begun, some of the earlier settings being already shedded. The crop is fine.

The Deep Things of Life.

The hymn line: "Cast your deadly doing down" was long ago discredited and laughed out of court. Nevertheless, one who plus faith to ceaseless activities, even of philanthropy and reform, who is contemptuous of poetry, philosophy and religion, who forgets to draw from the perennial wells of courage and inspiration, will sooner or later walk in a barren land of petty interests, unable to discover the springs of refreshment.

The Other—Well you'll never be troubled with crowds while you smoke cigars of that brand!

Extinct Stars Still Visible.
It is a fact, startling as it may seem, that many of the stars we see twinkling in the sky at night, may have ceased to exist centuries ago. Some of these stars are so distant that even light takes hundreds or thousands of years to travel from them to us; and the rays which enable us to see them today may have left them thousands of years ago. We see them, not as they are today, but as they were long ages ago.
They lie in Janesville.

Wear Furs Continues.
Throughout the cold latitudes of China during the winter the Chinese of all classes wear fur, wool or hair-lined garments. Even the coolies have their sheep or goat skins, and people of the middle and official classes have many sets of garments lined with the richest furs. Their houses are rarely heated to a comfortable temperature, and in consequence they wear their furs both indoors and out.

The Silver Horde

By REX BEACH

Author of "The Spoilers" and "The Barrier"

COPYRIGHT, 1909, BY HARPER & BROTHERS

The breath of the wild north-west is in this great story of love and life and hate and death. Rex Beach and Jack London have revealed the hidden mysteries and romances of the Alaskan wastes as have no other authors, and in this stirring, gripping narrative is shown the best work of Mr. Beach's career. Boyd Emerson and his superhuman efforts to win a fortune for the woman he loved; Charley Malotta, the captivating, enigmatic young woman who combated desperate men on the battleground of their own choosing; Mildred Wayland, the imperious beauty and society favorite, whose hand was sought by bitter rivals who did not stop at murder; George Bull, the sturdy stoker hero, whose voice was like the roar of giant waves on a lee shore; "Fingerless" Fraser, whose quaint humor alone prevented him from going to jail, where he really belonged; and Willis Marsh, unprincipled intriguer and a betrayer of men and women—these are some of the characters and elements that make this story one of the greatest tales of adventure ever written.

CHAPTER I.

THE trail to Kalvik leads down from the northward mountains over the tundra which flanks the tide flats, then creeps out upon the salt ice of the river and across to the village.

A Greek church, a Russian school with a cackled priest presiding and about a hundred houses beside the cannery buildings make up the village.

Early one December afternoon there entered upon this trail from the timbered hills far away to the northward a weary team of six dogs, driven by two men.

The travelers had been plodding sullenly hour after hour, dispirited by the weight of the storm.

"Fingerless" Fraser broke trail, and Lloyd Emerson drove.

"Another day like this and we'd both be snow blind," observed Emerson grimly as he bent to his task. "But it can't be far to the river now."

An hour later they dropped from the plain down through a guttural gully to the river, where they found a trail, glass hard beneath its downy covering. A cold breath sucked up from the sea. Ahead they saw the ragged ice upended by the tide. One branch led to the village, which they knew lay somewhere on the farther side, hidden by a mile or more of silted snow.

The going here was so rough that both men leaped from their seats and ran beside the sled. They mounted a swelling ridge and rushed down to the level river ice beyond, but as they did so they heard a shivering crack on every side and saw water rising about the sled runners. Emerson shouted, the dogs leaped, but with a crash the ice gave way, and for a moment the water closed over him. "Fingerless" Fraser broke through in turn, gasping as the icy water rose to his armpits.

Each man aimed to secure an independent footing, but the efforts of all only enlarged the pool. Emerson shouted:

"Cut the team loose, quick!" But the other spat out a mouthful of salt water and spluttered:

"I can't swim!"

Whereupon the first speaker half swam himself through the slush to the forward end of the sled and, seeking out the sleigh knife from beneath his parka, cut the harness of the two animals. Once free they scrambled to safety and rolled in the dry snow.

Emerson next attempted to lift the nose of the sled up on the ice, shouting at the remainder of the team to pull, but they only wagged their tails and whined. Each time he tried to lift the sled he crashed through fresh ice, finally bearing the next pair of dogs with him and then the two animals in the lead. All of them became hopelessly entangled.

Suddenly rang out a sharp command uttered in a new voice. Out of the snow fog from the direction in which they were headed broke a team, running full and free. Emerson unrolled at the outfit, having never seen the like in all his travels through the north, for each animal of the twelve stood hip high to a tall man, and they were like wolves of one pack, gray and gaunt and sleek. A tall Indian runner left the team and headed swiftly for the scene of the accident. The man ran forward till he neared the edge of the opening where the tide had caused the dogs to separate; then, dashing his body on the ice, he crawled out cautiously and seized the lead dog. Carefully he wormed his way backward to security. It had been a ticklish operation, requiring nice skill and dexterity, but now that his footing was sure the runner exerted his whole strength, and as the dogs scratched and tore for a firm foothold the sled came crunching closer and closer through the half inch skin of ice. Then he reached down and dragged Emerson out, dripping and nerveless from his immersion. Together they reached the outfit.

The person in the sled had watched them silently, but now spoke in a strange patois, and the breed gave voice to her words, for it was a woman.

"One mile you go—white man house. Go quick—you freeze."

"Ain't you got no dry clothes? Our stuff is soaked."

Again the Indian translated some words from the girl.

"No. You hurry and no stop here. We go quick over yonder. No can stop at all."

He hurried back to his mistress, cried once to the pack of gray dogs, "Oonah!" and they were off as if in chase.

As they dashed past both white men had one fleeting glimpse of a woman's face beneath a furred hood, and then it was gone.

"Did you see?" Fraser ejaculated. "Good Lord! It's a woman—a blond woman!"

"Nonsense! She must be a breed," said Emerson.

"Breeds don't have yellow hair!" declared the other.

Swiftly they bent in the free dogs and lashed the team to a run. They felt the chill of death in their bones, and instead of riding they ran with the sled till their blood bent painfully. Their outer coverings were like shells, their underclothes were soaked, and, although they dared not stop, for this is the extremest peril of the north.

They swung over the river bank and into the midst of great rambling frame buildings. Their trail led them to a high banked cabin. Another mile would have meant disaster.

"Hout out the owner and tell him we're wet," said Emerson. "I'll free the dogs."

Before he could reach the cabin the door opened and Fraser appeared, a strange, dazed look on his face. He was followed by a large man of sullen countenance.

"It's no use," Fraser said. "We can't go in."

"What's wrong? Somebody sick?"

"I don't know what's the matter. This man just says 'nix,' that's all."

The fellow growled, "Yaxa; Ay got no room."

"But you don't understand," said Emerson. "We're wet. We broke through the ice. Never mind the room. We'll get along somehow."

"You can't come in here. You find another house three miles further."

The traveler pushed forward. Involuntarily the watchman drew back, whereupon the unwelcome visitor crowded past, jostling his inhospitable host roughly. Emerson's quick action gained him entrance, and Fraser followed behind into the living room, where a flat nosed squaw withdrew before them. The young man addressed her peremptorily:

"Punch up that fire and get us something to eat, quick!"

Scarcely obedience followed.

Fraser had been watching the fellow and now remarked to his companion:

"Say, what ails that ginney?"

The assumption of good nature fell away from Lord Emerson as he replied:

"I never knew anybody to refuse shelter to freezing men before."

The watchman reappeared.

"You can't stop here!" he said. "Ay got orders. By Xingo, Ay tow you out!"

He stooped and gathered up the garments nearest him, then stepped toward the outer door, but before he could make good his threat Emerson whirled like a cat, his deep-set eyes dark with sudden fury, and seized his host by the nape of the neck. He jerked him back so roughly that the wet clothes dripped to the floor in four directions, whereon the Scandinavian let forth a howl, but Emerson struck him heavily on the jaw with his open hand, then hurled him backward into the room so violently that he reeled, and, his legs colliding with a bench, he fell against the wall. His assailant stepped in and throttled him, beating his head violently against the logs. Emerson, stepping back, spoke in a quivering voice which Fraser had never heard before:

"I'm just playing with you now. I don't want to hurt you."

"Get out of my house! Ay got orders!" cried the watchman and made for him again.

Emerson dragged him to his own doorway, jerked the door open and kicked him out into the snow, then barred the entrance and returned to the warmth of the logs, his face convulsed and his lips working.

TAFT HAS NAMED A BOND BOARD

PRESIDENT TAFT ANNOUNCES APPOINTMENT OF NEW STOCK COMMISSION.

ARTHUR T. HADLEY CHAIRMAN

Committee Will Probe Question of Bringing Future Issues of Railroad Securities Under Control of Interstate Commerce Body.

Springfield, Mass., Sept. 5.—President Taft made public the names of the men who will compose the stock and bond commission which is to investigate the question of proper legislation to control the issue of stocks and bonds by interstate common carriers. The announcement was made during a short stop which Mr. Taft made here while on his way from Beverly to St. Paul, Minn., to address the National Conservation congress.

Hadley Heads Commission.
Dr. Arthur T. Hadley, president of Yale university, is named as chairman of the commission. The other members are Frederick N. Judson of St. Paul, Frederick Strauss of New York, Walter L. Fisher of Chicago and Professor D. H. Meyer of Madison, Wis.

The president is particularly gratified at obtaining the consent of all these gentlemen to serve. More than two hundred names were suggested to him and carefully considered before he arrived at a final choice.

Mr. Taft regards the commission as representative both of conservative and progressive thought in railroad regulation. If there should be a classification along these lines he would probably place Messrs. Judson and Strauss with the conservatives and Messrs. Fisher and Meyer with the progressives, leaving Chairman Hadley as the impartial referee. The commission will begin its work at once. President Hadley will sail for Europe shortly to study methods abroad.

TWO WOMEN HELD FOR MURDER.

Are Accused of Causing Death of Tie-maker at Garvin, Okla.

Idabel, Okla., Sept. 5.—With two women in jail charged with having caused the death of "Jim" Beatty, aged fifty, a tie-maker, at Garvin, by hanging him to a tree, McCurtain is furnishing a sensation second to none in Oklahoma. Myrtle Fitzpatrick, aged twenty-five, and Louella Chadwick, aged thirty-five, are in the county jail, accused of the murder.

Beatty's body was found under a tree with a wire tightly drawn around the neck. First it was believed Beatty had ended his own life by hanging, but an investigation discredited this theory. Neighbors declared two women were seen with Beatty where his body was found. The arrest of Miss Fitzpatrick and Miss Chadwick followed.

The women are well known at Garvin. Both refuse to make any statement.

400,000 AUTOS IN AMERICA.

About $500,000,000 Invested in Machines—Half Used for Pleasure.

New York, Sept. 5.—Inquiry shows that there are 400,000 automobiles in the United States. It is estimated that one-half of this vast arm is invested for automobile vehicles for commercial purposes and of actual utility to replace the work of horses, but the other $500,000,000 is invested in autos for pleasure.

Earthquake Carpenters.

The term "earthquake carpenter" at first glance might give the impression of a person capable of doing a job in fast time, regularly shaking the work together. To some persons it might convey the idea of a man whose work was so poor that it was likely to drop to pieces at any moment. Actually it is a Japanese term, and was used a great deal in Kingston after the disaster there. It really means a man whose work is in wreckage, a man who takes upon the fallen houses and sorts out the timbers.

Violence of Reason.

Reason is always a kind of brute force; those who appeal to the head rather than the heart, however pallid and polite, are necessarily men of violence. We speak of "touching" a man's heart, but we can do nothing to his head but hit it.—Gilbert K. Chesterton.

World's Sweetest Plant.

An Austrian Journal tells of a plant called Parkia biglobosa, recently discovered in Africa, which produces a fruit containing 20 per cent. reducing sugar, which puts it in the first rank of sugar-producing plants.

How Matches Are Made.

Certain kinds of matches are shaved with the grain from sawed blocks; others are cut both ways by saws. In still further varieties the blocks are boiled to make them cut easily. By some machines a boiled or steamed log is revolved on its own axis, and a shaver the thickness of a match is cut round and round. This shavings is at the same time cut into lengths and split into match sticks. It may be said that there is hardly a limit to the varieties of methods employed. Round matches are made by forcing them through dies.—Harper's Weekly.
